Before dancing each person holds a hand, two hands are held together, or the dancers dance individually. The music is usually played on one trumpet or horn. The dance is performed in a circle. The trumpet and the dance are introduced to the public in 1884. The dance is named after the town of Chester where it has originated. It was named after the people of Chester, who requested the music to be played at the Royal Ascot racecourse. The dance is performed in perfect unison in a circle using the same steps with an equal speed. The circles are usually divided by flags which direct the step
